THINKS BRYAN THE COMING MAN

Senator Clark of Montana Expresses Belief in Nomination of Nebraskan.

TALKS ON STATE POLITICS

DOUBT AS TO CANDIDACY OF HEINZE.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 9.—United States Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, in an interview here today, declared his belief that William J. Bryan will be nominated by the Democrats for president in 1908. The senator expressed himself as confident that the Nebraskan would have no opposition in the convention. Referring to Montana politics, Senator Clark said that his successor would probably be a Democrat, his advice on the political situation in his state being that the next legislature would be Democratic. He did not think, however, that F. Augustus Heinze would be nominated, and stated that he had understood Heinze had expressed himself as not desiring political preferment. The senator stated that his own retirement from the senate was due to his desire to be more at home. His duties at the capital, too, he said, had taxed his strength.

Stackpole a Former Employee.

Sensor Clark stated that he knew Ernest G. Stackpole, who is in the county jail here charged with the murder recently of Joel Schreck. Stackpole, he says, comes of good parentage living at Butte, Mont., and was formerly in his employ, but has had a checkered career. Several years ago, according to the senator, when Stackpole was a young man living with his family in Butte and working for him, he threatened to dynamite the senator's bank. Stackpole was arrested at the time, but out of sympathy for the latter's family Senator Clark declined to prosecute. The senator was reluctant to discuss the case in detail.

OPENING GUN IS FIRED.

Secretary Taft Makes Political Speech in North Carolina.

Greensboro, N. C., July 9.—Secretary of War Taft tonight, before a meeting of North Carolina Republicans on the eve of their state convention, delivered a speech that was generally regarded as the opening gun of the congressional campaign of 1906. The speech dealt with current political questions, opening with advice to the rank and file of the party in North Carolina and the south particularly, and referred to the achievements of the party in the session of congress just closed. The opera house was packed to overflowing by a throng eager to hear the secretary of war, and many were turned away because of the limited size of the hall. The secretary was warmly applauded throughout the speech. Mr. Taft left Greensboro tonight for the north, on a train to Pittsburg, O., where he delivers an address July 11 before the Ohio Bar association.

VICTIM OF MAD INFATUATION

Judge G. Meade Emory Dies of Wounds Inflicted by Young Thompson.

TELLS STORY OF TRAGEDY

FRIENDS OF THE YOUTH CLAIM INSANITY.

Seattle, July 9.—G. Meade Emory, the lawyer who was shot by Chester Thompson, the university student, here Saturday night, died at the Minor hospital early today. Young Thompson is the son of a prominent attorney and a nephew of Maurice Thompson, the author.

Seattle, July 9.—Murder in the first degree will be the charge against Chester Thompson, 20 years old, son of Will Thompson of this city, who shot Judge G. Meade Emory to death at his home Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Yesterday it was discovered that one bullet from young Thompson's revolver went clear through the body from left to right, entering a few inches below the armpit on the left side and perforating both lungs. Judge Emory literally bled to death from this wound, his physicians being unable to stop the hemorrhages which were both internal and external and very severe.

Made Dying Statement.

Judge Emory yesterday gave to his former law partner, Daniel Kelleher, a complete statement of the events prior to the shooting. "Saturday evening about dinner time, Chester Thompson called upon me by telephone and talked to Charlotte Whittlesey, my niece, with whom he was desperately in love. He asked permission to call on Charlotte. She told him she could not see him as she was going out for the evening. Moreover, she had told Chester she did not wish his attentions. Some time later, Chester again called up my home. This time, at Charlotte's request, I answered the telephone and talked with the boy. I told him that Charlotte did not wish to see him and, furthermore, that I did not wish him to come to the house again nor did I wish him to continue his attentions. He replied, 'Oh, ho! You don't want me to come to see her, eh?'"

Fatal Shots Fired.

"This was in a tone of voice indicating bitter hostility to me. That ended the conversation. An hour later Chester came running up the steps to our house. He entered the hall, passing me, and Mrs. Keith and my wife on the porch. Instantly I jumped to my feet and followed him. Then he turned and shot me down."

It is clear that when Thompson entered the house of Emory it was for the purpose of harassing Charlotte Whittlesey to make up with him and possibly to kill her and then himself if she refused.

The plea of the defense will be insanity, based on the mad infatuation of the accused youth for Charlotte Whittlesey, and also on his eccentric actions during the past two years.

TRYING TO EVADE PAYING LOSSES

Williamsburg Fire Insurance Company Will Resist San Francisco Claims.

New York, July 9.—The position of the Williamsburg Fire Insurance company with reference to claims growing out of the San Francisco disaster was outlined today by President Marshall S. Driggs of the company. Mr. Driggs' statement was called forth by the announcement that San Francisco policyholders had organized to sue his company for their recent losses.

"It is true that the earthquake clause was added only two years ago," said Mr. Driggs, "and that some of the policyholders may not have noticed it, but if they did not read their policies that is not our fault. 'Of course, the ground will be taken that the earthquake clause does not apply because it was not earthquake, but fire, that caused the damage,' said he. 'We are advised by our counsel, however, that as long as the earthquake was the primary cause we are not liable.'"

Grand Jury Investigating.

San Francisco, July 9.—Some of the so-called dollar companies are likely to hear unpleasant news from the proceedings of the present grand jury. It is said the investigating department is not satisfied with the conduct of the new adjusting committee of the dollar companies, the thirty-five bolters who organized an independent committee of five to supplement the underwriters' committee of fifteen. Thus far, it is charged, the committee of five have operated merely to create a further delay after a loss had been reported for the large body of claims. It is believed that recommendations for a sweeping change in the present method of handling claims are likely to issue from the investigation now under way.

RUNAWAY SWITCH ENGINE.

Eight Men Slightly Injured in Collision at Memphis, Tenn.

Memphis, Tenn., July 9.—After colliding with a passenger train at Orleans street today, a Southern railway switch engine, with two cars attached, dashed wildly without a crew three-quarters of a mile to the Union depot on Calhoun street, where it crashed into two cars. Eight men were slightly injured, and one seriously.

When the switch engine collided with the passenger train the engineer and his fireman jumped. The switch engine, guided by hand, dashed forward at increased speed. The locomotive crossed eleven streets before arriving at the depot, and the presence of mind of a yardman prevented the engine from dashing into the depot proper.

ITALIAN CRUISER VICTIM OF MISTAKE

San Juan, P. R., July 9.—The arrival of Secretary Root here yesterday caused a laughable incident at the expense of the Italian cruiser Umbria. At that hour the United States revenue cutter Albatross entered the harbor from the island of St. Thomas, D. W. L., with Postmaster Landis and Collector of Customs Cauters of San Juan on board. The Umbria thereupon fired a salute of seventeen guns, but afterward sent a lieutenant on board the Albatross explaining that the commander of the Umbria thought the Albatross was the Charleston. The firing of the salute by the Umbria caused a rush of spectators to the water front.

Secretary Wilson said: "The meeting was not a formal affair. The Washington authorities asked me to meet the packers, and this time and place were considered the most convenient. I am here today to listen. My mission here is to explain the new law to the government inspectors. I do not expect to make a detailed inspection of the stockyards, but will inform the public as to the result of my labors while here just as soon as I can."

"I found the general condition at the stockyards to be good," said Secretary Wilson tonight, "and everything was done to explain the new law to the government inspectors. HOPE IS IDENTIFIED AS "DR. KINGSLEY" OF DENVER

Had Similar Career There --- Checks From Schiff, Letters From Curzon, Morgan and Others.

Deserted Three Months' Bride After Taking Her Money—Discovered Here by Woman Who Collected Old Bill From Him—Eccles and Holbrook Explain.

"Dr. Arnold Kingsley," recently of Denver, and Beresford Hope, alias Herman Beresford, are one and the same. Positive identification of Hope as Kingsley has been made by Mrs. L. C. Robinson, 60 Fifth street. Mrs. Robinson met "Kingsley" in November of last year in Denver, where she was employed on the Daily Mining Record. "Kingsley" gave her an advertisement for which the bill was $25.00. He fled from Denver by paying Mrs. Robinson to meet him in Salt Lake, where he was going under the name of Hope, and recognized him. She presented Hope the bill he had contracted under the name of Kingsley, and to avoid exposure, he said it was a $500.00 check on the "Chemical National bank of New York." In Denver he showed letters purporting to be signed by Lord Curzon, viceroy of India; J. Pierpont Morgan, and others far more celebrated than the "Oscar Clement" of his Salt Lake correspondence. He got large amounts of money from some unknown sources, but failed to persuade Fred Schaffer, one of Denver's wealthy men, to give him $4,000 while he was disposing of some alleged British consols.

When Kingsley disappeared suddenly from Denver last December he deserted a bride of three months, whose money he had taken. She was Miss Pearl Shales, niece of former Congressman S. Shales of Iowa. Apparently he came directly to Salt Lake, where he began talking marriage to various Utah girls.

David Eccles and Lafayette Holbrook now say they suspected Hope all the time, and didn't indorse him. What they said of Hope May 21 last is republished. John A. Bagley has "left Hope behind." Previous to departing from Boston for New York he reaffirmed his faith in that resourceful individual. Hope, alias Beresford, alias Kingsley, is still in Boston. He expressed a fear yesterday that his exposure by The Herald would prevent his securing the many millions to foster western enterprises.

Ezra T. Stevenson, bookkeeper in the Deseret National bank, and brother-in-law of Dr. C. E. Wilcox, returned yesterday from Colorado Springs and Boston. He says that he saw John Hill in the former place, and that Mr. Hill said he never heard of Hope. The name of "John Hill" is attached to stock certificates of the Great Western Coal & Iron company, of which Mr. Stevenson is secretary.

The Deseret National bank was advised yesterday by its London correspondent that it was unable to find any such company as the "British-American Securities, Limited," capital $10,000,000, with Lord Rothschild and others as directors. An experience of B. F. Brant, W. O. Carls and J. B. Moreton with Hope is related.

The Herald is the only newspaper in Salt Lake City which has told the truth about Hope from the beginning. The West Temple street organs have engaged in a campaign to suppress the truth, and have denounced The Herald for "knocking" him. After all this series of exclusive exposures by The Herald they have not yet informed their readers that Hope is anything but a scion of royalty, backed by millions of British money and engaged in the bona fide carrying out of legitimate enterprises.

Who is honest with the public? West Temple street papers please copy.

Beresford Hope, alias Herman Beresford, has been identified as "Doctor" Arnold Kingsley, who worked several business men in Denver last year. Hope came direct to Salt Lake from Denver last November, where he left a bride of three months stranded at the Eleventh Avenue hotel. He took $500 from his bride, which she had saved from her salary as stenographer.

The identification was made by Mrs. L. C. Robinson, formerly a newspaper woman of Denver, now living at 670 Fifth street. She came forward yesterday with the story. Mrs. Robinson is positive that she is not mistaken in the man, for she collected a bill for $25.00 which he contracted in Denver with the Daily Mining Record under the name of Kingsley.

Manager of Mining Company. "I first met Kingsley the early part of last November in Denver," she said yesterday. "At that time I was doing some special work for the mining congress edition of the Daily Mining Record. Kingsley was general manager of the Virginia Mining company, which property is located above Ward in Boulder county. He had luxuriously furnished offices in the Ferguson block at Eleventh and Champa streets. I do not know much about Kingsley's reputation at that time except he said he was a doctor from East India. He had large amounts of money, but where he got it I do not know."

"The Virginia Mining company was about to put up a mill and smelter, and I went to Kingsley to secure a paid write-up for the special congress edition. He acted strangely when I called on him. He opened his conversation by saying that he was a woman-hater, but agreed to take an advertisement. He refused to have the contract signed by a woman. I had to go to an advertiser."

"I believe I remember meeting you once in Denver."

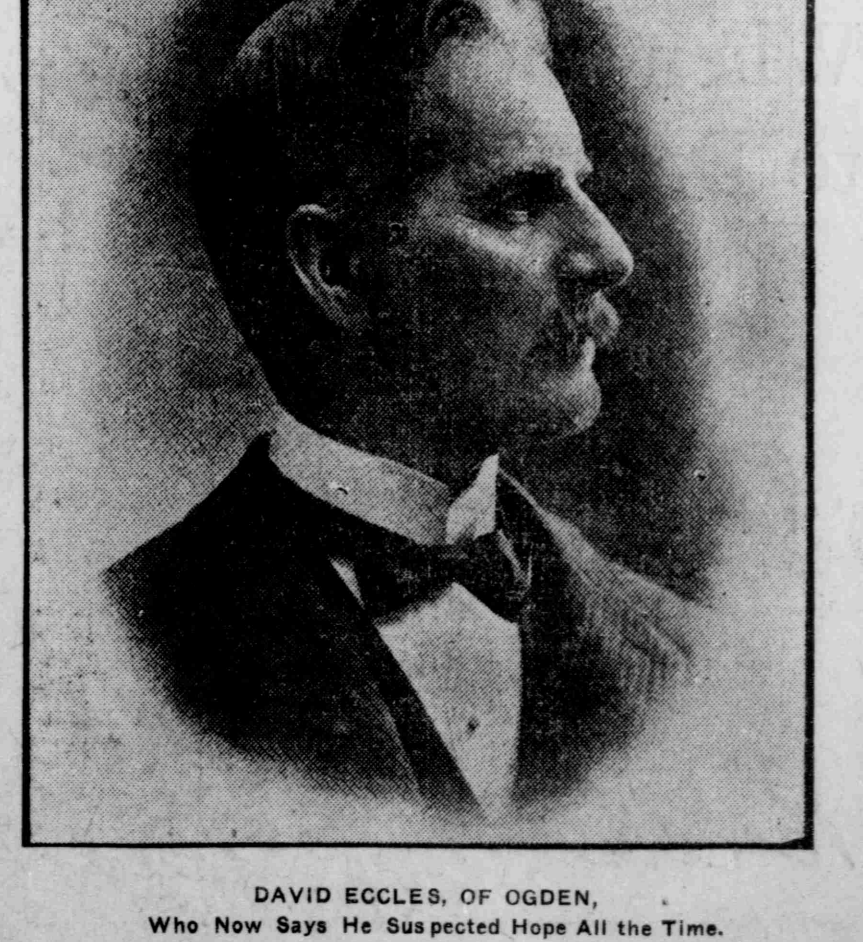

"I was never in Denver," Hope replied. He looked uneasy when I mentioned Denver, so I said nothing more to him about it.

"Hope was expected to come to the boarding house to live. He engaged a suite of three rooms. I knew he would never come there after recognizing me, because I knew I was acquainted with his Denver record."

"Several days later I met him on a street car. I sat down beside him and said: 'Don't you recall the time you met me in Denver, Mr. Hope?'"

"No, I don't," he replied. "I never was in Denver."
